

If these banks had been taking care of their customers when they had them, they wouldn't need to be calling them now. The CBA's petition should be denied.